

Provider-specific Information for Adding or Updating Listings

Article Content

When you add a new location to Alchemer, listings begin to generate automatically for many providers such as Apple and Yelp. For some, including Facebook and Google, the addition of new listings is manual and isn't done automatically when added to Alchemer.

Once a location is added or updated, that information is sent immediately, whether automatically or manually by us, to the providers' platforms. The time it takes to publish depends on the activity on the providers' end of the process.

You'll need to set up your provider business account and provide Alchemer with account information so that we can manage speedy information transfer and timely updates. The type of information required is account credentials, verification, and more depending on the provider.
